After leaving Louisbourg as a teenager, Francois moved to the lower St John River area where he met and married Marie-Luce Thibodeau. They cleared and built on some land along the Hammond River and farmed it for almost 20 years, and the first 12 of their children were born there. Chapter 12 tells of the struggles the family faced getting established there and why they finally decided to leave all that behind and start over again in the Upper St John River area.
